Rotozip (T: 0844 7360107) has launched a tool kit for tiling, based on its new X-Core innovation. Developed for use with Rotozip Spiral Saws, X-Core is said to enable professional tillers to effectively make difficult freehand dry-cuts in the hardest of tiling materials including porcelain, granite, marble and natural stone.

The new X-Core starter kit is said to give significant savings in time, labour and material costs, combining the fastest hole saw bits with the performance of the RZ5 spiral saw. X-Cores are produced using vacuum brazed technology to guarantee longer life expectancy, faster speeds than conventional drill bits and able to make clear cuts without blow-outs. The kit, priced just under $220 (excluding VAT) comprises the RZ5 spiral saw, four X-Cores in 8,12, 21 and 30mm diameters, a vacuum attachment, a 6.3mm collet and wrench, presented in a hard-wearing Rotozip tool bag.

Ryalux (T: 00845 652 8811) will focus on Pownall and Simply ranges, plus the V&A and Rya Collections, and display new POS for each brand. The company will also showcase Ultimate Living, a handmade bespoke collection in any colour via the Ryalux colour match technology, and in any width up to 7m. The collection comes in 12 textures from twists to shag piles.

The revitalisation of the Lomas brand will also be revealed at the show. It was recently relaunched as William Classics, to preserve the link with the heritage and quality of its founder, William Lomas. It is now available in a twist, a velvet and textured loop pile all with at least 80% wool, 4m and 5m wide. CFJ
